Polonia—the Polish community living outside of Poland—is one of the most dynamic, powerful ethnic groups in the world. Americans of Polish descent comprise the ninth largest ethnic group in North America, with over 10 million people claiming roots in Poland.

The Polish American Journal is the nation's largest English-language, independent monthly, dedicated to the preservation and continuance of Polish culture in the United States. Its mission is simple: to report on the positive and constructive achievements to the American way of life by North Americans of Polish descent and Polish immigrants. News from Poland and other Polish accomplishments affecting world culture, politics, arts and sciences are an important component of the newspaper.

Areas of interest covered in the Polish American Journal include: Religion, Sports, Culture, Book Reviews, Entertainment, Heritage, Across Polonia, Newsmark, Folklore, Poland, Genealogy, Politics, and Viewpoints. Additional features published throughout the year include: Armed Service and Veterans, Academia, Business, His-most-celebrated events in Polonia. Traditions, such as the blessing of Easter baskets and the sharing of the Holy Wafer at Christmas date back to ancient Poland, and are adherently practiced today. These are customs that are now being observed within other ethnic groups whose long-standing ties with the church are woven deep in their cultural fabric.

The Christmas, Easter, and Heritage Month editions serve two purposes: first, to reinforce these traditions and inspire others to share in their practice. Second, these editions allow leaders in politics, business, and other private and public sectors to extend holiday greetings to Polonia. As indicated by our subscribers, these special editions are the most-read papers. Families, gathering for the holidays, often share their copies with relatives and friends, who later join the Journal family. It is a time when we realize the greatest surge in new subscribers—through word of mouth and gift subscribers.

Special holiday patron advertising forms are mailed out to Polonia's most respected leaders. To include your organization or yourself in this mailing, please contact the newspaper.

tory, Science, Youth, Polonica, Media, People, Scholarships, and many specialized items.

Each edition dedicates several pages strictly to news about the vibrant Polish American polka, covering news and events from across the United States and Canada.
